design brief

STEP 01

Make an appointment with your Studio Italia design consultant. At this initial consultation, our team will discuss your bedroom wish list and the wardrobe project's specifications. Working directly with you, your architect or designer, Poliform ensures that all elements of your wardrobe will meet your functional, budget and aesthetic requirements.

When we start working with a client we start with the basics – size, dimensions of your space, so we can determine what will fit, for example is there space for a walk-in wardrobe or is more traditional wardrobe with doors more appropriate?

We also spend time with you in this initial stage, understanding your vision for your wardrobe and what's important to you. We help you find a place for your shoes, your handbags, hats, jewellery or suits, we spend time understanding your lifestyle so we can create a wardrobe that is tailored to meet your needs.

STEP 02

Based on your brief, the Studio Italia design team will then present an initial layout and cost estimate. Over the course of a few meetings, the team will continue to refine the design further. Our showroom wardrobes allow you to experience, touch and feel finishes and fittings to discover just how your wardrobe will take shape and what you would like to select – from leather finishes to hidden drawers, every finish and every detail can be personalised for you.

STEP 03

Once the design, materials and costs have been approved by you, the design team produces a full package of technical information, and the order is placed. An invoice will be raised and your order is confirmed by way of 40% deposit. Your wardrobe is custom manufactured in Italy, to your specifications, tested and then shipped to New Zealand.

STEP 04

Our in-house team will then manage the delivery and installation of your new wardrobe, working with your builder and architect to meet your time lines. From initial preparations and on-site inspections through to final installation, every detail is covered to accurately and efficiently match specifications.
